ew Gown Shop In Biz for Busy Brides

It's a one-stop shop at Hitched, a quaint new bridal salon in the heart of Georgetown where hard-to-find wedding gowns are at your fingertips, along with a wealth of other bridal services. Owners Julia Lichtman Kepniss and Carin Rosenberg Levine know a thing or two about D.C. brides with busy schedules (they were once full-time professionals trying to plan their own weddings). So, they make it easy for you by carrying the latest designer fashions from Kenneth Pool, Judd Waddell, and Elizabeth Fillmore, as well as a carefully edited selection of bridesmaid dresses by Thread and Simple Silhouettes.

They also carry several lesser-known stationery lines and can even refer you to sought-after pros—hip wedding planners, bakers, and florists. “Ninety percent of our clientele are in graduate school or professionals with very busy lives,” says Kepniss. “So, they’re looking for a store with services under one roof.”
